

The Northwest Natural Horsemanship Center (NWNHC) in Seattle is currently looking for new interns wanting a "real-life" experience.

The Center has been providing educational opportunities in natural horsemanship for more than 18 years. During this time UMW students have been interns and employees. Other interns have gone on to become independent instructors and trainers. The center's goal is education. We provide students, studying for a career in natural horsemanship, the chance to really learn what it's like to make a living at this crazy business. The Center is located just outside Seattle, Wash. in the foothills of the Cascade Mountains. We have extensive facilities for training and learning, as well as a steady clientele. Benefits For The Intern:

- Real-life experience
- Event marketing and management
- Student teaching (based on experience)
- Experience in equine financial management and budgeting
- Many horse and human learning styles to experience
- Free learning from world-renowned clinicians and professional instructors/trainers

Please feel free to forward this email to any students or associates you may know that might be interested. Here's where they can find more details and how to apply: <http://www.nwnhc.com/html/internship.htm>
