The method used by The University of Montana Western to determine which students were eligible to receive Emergency Financial Aid Grants and how much the students could receive of the Coronavirus Response & Relief Supplemental Appropriations Act (CRRSA) is:

- a. pulled report of all enrolled students with a 2020-2021 FAFSA on file (for Spring 2021)
- b. first Initial round of awards were given based on the student's FM Expected Family Contribution (EFC) & their enrollment at the time the award was made (no additional application required). Students must be in attendance at the time of their award to receive funds.
- c. first initial amounts awarded were based on a rubric ranging from $100-$1000 per student with the larger awards going to Pell eligible students. Students who were awarded less than the amount allowed based on the rubric were awarded the difference to get them to the award based on the criteria based on their area within the rubric
- d. reports will be run periodically to identify any new FAFSA submissions and awards will be based on the rubric ranges
- e. students will be allowed to submit an application requesting additional funds after the Initial awards are processed
- f. applications will be reviewed at least weekly to determine eligibility for awards
- g. If funds remain after Spring 2021, we will require students to have the 2021-2022 FAFSA on file for awarding Summer 2021 or Fall 2021
- h. Same rules above will apply for any future semester awards
